Corrigan Brick Tavern
Old Rt. 36, Corriganville
1860

The Corrigan Brick Tavern is located on the Old Plank Road ( a main throughfare during the first half of the nineteenth century) and not only provided food, drink, and accomodations but also was a center of social activities for the local population. The design of the building is unusual for the area, featuring a brick frieze in the eaves and window arches with radiating voussoirs and also having two chimneys which are located flush end, with chimney stacks linked at the base.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Corrigan Brick Tavern is located on Old Route 36, Corriganville, Allegany County.

The building basically consists of a two story, five bay wide, rectangular shaped structure. Wall construction is brick, laid in American Common Bond with seven to one variation. Wall features are plain. The building has a brick, two story rear addition with flat roof with plain parapet trimmed with tile along its ridges. Its chimney is flush end located on the south facade. The addition's windows feature arches with radiating voussoirs surrounding the head of each window. The building is supported by a high, stone foundation featuring a beveled water table. The roof of the building is gable flank and is covered with asphalt; replaced. Located on the roof are snow birds. The roof exhibits gabled parapets decorated with tile along its side ridges. Eaves of the roof exhibit a brick frieze. Windows in the building are oegged, nailed, double hung, with wooden sash frames and features three-over-one, five-over-one and six-over six lights. Window trim features cornices at the heads and slinsills at the bases of the windows. A special feature of the building is the bay window that is located on the south facade with gable roof, boxed cornice with return ends, soffit and frieze. There are four chimneys in the building. All are original, brick with corbeled caps. Three are in the main part of the building, two of which are flush end, whose chimney stacks are linked at the base. The third chimney is outside end located on the north facade. The main entrance is located on the west facade featuring two deep set doors which are four paneled, verticle boards; replaced; with rectangular transom. The one porch is a two -bay; open; end; porch with hip roof, supported by square columns with cushion capitals and stone bases.

The building is structurally sound; however it has been somewhat altered since original construction; but still maintains most of its original appearance.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Corrigan Brick Tavern is a typical mid 19th century tavern, being a long two story structure. In an era of continuing westward expansion enterprising individuals opened inns and taverns near main thoroughfares. The Corrigan Brick Tavern was constructed along the PLANK ROAD from Baltimore to Somerset, Pa. in a prime location within several miles of the Narrows, one of the main channels of transportation westward through the Appalachian Mts. Another commercially favorable aspect of the tavern's location is that it was opposite the Stage Coach Stop on the Plank Road (See AL-V-B-088). The taverns of the mid-19th century not only provided food, drink, and accommodations but also was a center of social activities for the local population. <sup>1</sup>.

Plank Roads were common in the United States at the mid-century and provided a smoother ride than rock or gravel surfaced roads. "The average United States plank road had a roadbed of 30 feet and a plank at least 8 feet wide." <sup>2</sup>. The Planks were three or four inches thick and nine to sixteen inches wide, rested on rails and were covered with sand or sawdust. <sup>3</sup>,

Now a private residence and business, a beer distributorship, the former tavern is structurally in good shape. The design of the building is unusual for this area, featuring a brick frieze in the eaves and window arches with radiating voussoirs also having two chimneys which are located flush end, whose chimney stacks are linked at the base.

This house retains much of its original appearance and restoration could be accomplished with a minimum effort. It is an architectural monument to the development of transportation, commerce and architectural design in Allegany County.
